There were three construction workers, one was mexican, one was English, and the other was polish. They were on the high scaffolding of the building they were building, and they were eating lunch. The Mexican looked in his lunch, and said, "A taco, if I get a taco one more time I'm going to jump off this building!" The English guy looked in his lunch, and said, "Crumpets, if I get crumpets one more time I'm going to jump off this building!" Then the Polish guy looked in his lunch and said, "Polish sausage, if I get this sausage one more time I'm going to jump off of this building!" The next day they all got the same lunch, and they all jumped off the building, and died. At the funeral the Mexican's wife said, "If he would have told me he didn't want tacos I would have made him something different." Then the English guy's wife said, "If he would have told me he didn't want crumpets I would have made him something else." Then the Polish guy's wife said, "I don't understand, he made his own lunch."

Juan comes up to the Mexican border on his bicycle. He's got two large bags over his shoulders. The guard stops him and says, "What's in the bags?" "Sand," answered Juan.

The guard says, "We'll just see about that. Get off the bike." The guard takes the bags and rips them apart. He empties them out and finds nothing in them but sand. He detains Juan overnight and has the sand analyzed, only to discover that there is nothing but pure sand in the bags. The guard releases Juan, puts the sand into new bags, hefts them onto the man's shoulders, and lets him cross the border. A week later, the same thing happens. The guard asks, "What have you got?" "Sand," says Juan. The guard does his thorough examination and discovers that the bags contain nothing but sand. He gives the sand back to Juan, and Juan crosses the border on his bicycle. This sequence of events if repeated every day for three years. Finally, Juan doesn't show up one day and the guard meets him in a Cantina in Mexico. "Hey, Buddy," says the guard, "I know you are smuggling something. It's driving me crazy. It's all I think about. I can't sleep. Just between you and me, what are you smuggling?" Juan sips his beer and says, "Bicycles."
